

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus are disclosed for facilitating a web site password verification. Preferred embodiments include a web site configured to receive a request from a user for a password, query the user for an email address, associate a password with the user based on the received email address, and send an email to the user containing a password.